'Faiths at Work' is a project of the Churches' Industrial Group Birmingham, and the Faith Encounter Programme, funded by a 'Faiths in Action' grant from the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Faiths at work

At work we meet people of every faith but how much do we understand each other?
Can faith be 'good for business'?

Our faiths speak about work and about values in daily life but employers are sometimes uncertain about faith and belief at work. They may see it as a problem, with staff needing special treatment or wanting time out for religious practice.

So.....

What's it like being a person of faith at work?

What do our faiths say about work?

What values do we bring?

Can faith be 'good for business'?

The 'Faiths at work' programme offers a safe space for working people from different faith communities to discuss their experience and learn together.
